EXTENSIVE RAINFALL AT STALINGRAD IS HARBINGER OF THE CRUEL RUSSIAN WINTER; RUSSIAN POSITION CRITICAL

"Situation Has Not Developed in Favor of The Defenders," It is Stated—However, Substantial German Force Is Trapped in Mozdok Area

MOSCOW, Sept. 10.—(INS)—Harbingers of the cruel Russian winter that crippled Adolf Hitler's armies last year, the first extensive Autumn rain fell on the Stalingrad front today. Nazi Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock staged repeated attacks against Soviet defenses there and at Novorossisk, where the situation was officially described as "strained."

Although Soviet forces continued to repel all attacks, the Russian position both west and southwest of Stalingrad became more critical.

An authoritative statement said: "The situation so far has not developed in favor of the defenders."

Better reports were received from the Mozdok area, where a substantial German force is trapped and is being "methodically" wiped out.

Hopes were held out that the rainfall which broke a terrific heatwave at Stalingrad would continue in order that German mechanized units would be slowed down by a soggy terrain.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—(INS)—(By Official German Wireless)—The Russian defenders of Stalingrad have launched "strong relief attacks" and Soviet troops in the Rzhev (northwest of Moscow) area have resumed attacks with strong infantry and tank units, the German high command acknowledged today.

"In the fortification area of Stalingrad, strongly fortified and stubbornly defended strongholds were taken with support of the Luftwaffe," the high command claimed.

Nazi planes were said to have aided in turning back the Russian attacks in the Rzhev sector in fighting which the high command described as "severe fighting." It was claimed that 77 Russian tanks were destroyed.

Army Finance Training School, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.

TO MEET TONIGHT

A meeting of the Bristol Suburban Baseball League will be held tonight at 8.30 o'clock in the St. Ann's clubhouse. All managers are requested to be present as this will be the final meeting of the season.

RADIO AFIRE

Bristol Consolidated firemen were called yesterday to Lincoln avenue where a radio had caught fire. No damage was done.

MOSCOW, Sept. 10.—(INS)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill's address to the House of Commons in which he disclosed that Soviet Russia is not satisfied with the war aid being given by Great Britain and the United States was published almost in full by Moscow newspapers today.

At the time, however, well-informed observers expressed the view that Churchill summed up Russia's feelings fairly.

To say that there is any "serious disagreement" between Churchill and Premier Joseph Stalin is inaccurate. This would imply failure of the Churchill-Stalin conversations in Moscow, which is definitely not the case.

President Issues Order On Wages

By William Theis
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(INS)—President Roosevelt set the pace—and a precedent—for Congress today in an executive order outlawing penalty double time payment for Sunday work, the first move on his Labor Day pledge to stabilize wages.

Coming a scant two days after he called upon Congress to control soaring farm prices by October 1st, the first of his promised anti-inflation orders makes universal a "no Sunday double time" pay practice already invoked by many unions.

It makes formal and binding the pledge given months ago by Presidents William Green of the AFL and Philip Murray of the CIO that such payments would be voided voluntarily by labor for the duration of the war.

The order permits double time payment for any individual's "seventh consecutive day of work" to maintain efficiency through "one day of rest in seven." It does not disturb time and half payment for overtime work after 40 hours.

As the President took his first step on wages, members of the War Labor Board indicated that the Board's "Little Steel" cost of living formula will be the basis for the chief executive's wage stabilization program.

Most drastic feature of the new program, they said, will be an extension of the formula—which ties wages to the 15 per cent living cost increase—to include all wage increases instead of merely disputed claims now controlled by the WLB.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

CLEANED BY REPORTERS

While cleaning up the basement in the Court House at Doylestown, on Friday, Head Janitor Harvey L. Leatherman and his assistants unearthed a Franklin stove which had been dismantled and was covered with dust.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer, who communicated with Horace M. Mann, Bucks County Historical Society Curator, was informed that Franklin stoves were manufactured between 1800 and 1830 and that the stove was undoubtedly used in the first Court House, which was built in 1812.

The stove, after being cleaned up, was presented to the historical society, and will be exhibited in the famed museum at Doylestown.

Two Croydonites Take 100-Mile Saddle Trip

CROYDON, Sept. 10.—A 100-mile saddle trip to Perkiomenville was participated in last week by Miss Margaret Davis, 20, and Edward Johnson, 15.

Leaving here on Wednesday morning, the two reached the home of Miss Davis' aunt, Mrs. Joseph Fobare, Perkiomenville, by night-fall, and remained two nights. They returned home on Friday.

Miss Davis rode her three-quarter size horse, "Boy," and Edward rode his pony "Dusty."

This is the second such trip for the local young woman. Last year she made the same journey, taking an extra horse to Perkiomenville.

MCCOLICK GETS DECISION

William McCollick, well-known light-weight boxer, recently won a decision over his opponent when a group of Marines battled Naval men at Jacksonville, Fla. McCollick, during his residence on Buckley street, was connected with St. Ann's Club, and frequently battled locally. He is now a member of the U. S. Marine Corps and is stationed at Jacksonville. McCollick fought a sailor, Jerry Schwartz, and gained the decision Schwartz was dropped for the count two times in the opening round from being hit by McCollick's blows.

Sgt. Anthony Sabatini has returned to Fort McClellan, Ala., after spending a few days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sabatini, Magnolia Road, Bristol Township.

A Word From Two Old Friends

(By "The Stroller")

I have received a card from "Bill" Tyrol, who is now in San Diego, California.

"Bill" is a construction engineer at the Naval Air Station in San Diego, and the picture card that he sends of the parade grounds of the Marine base there, certainly pictures it as a beautiful community.

"Ray Nevegold," writes "Bill," "is master painter here with the Navy." Ray has a lot of friends there the same as he had when he made Bristol his home and was assistant chief of the Bristol Volunteer Fire Department. Nevegold and Tyrol are in the same outfit.

Tyrol is the son of Mrs. John J. Tyrol, of Mulberry street.

Whistles of Two Industries Are Prematurely Sounded

REPORT NO VIOLATIONS

The premature blowing of whistles in two industries here which are part of Bristol's air raid alarm, threw Bristol into confusion last night, shortly after five o'clock, when an air raid alert was held in the five-county Philadelphia metropolitan area.

The whistles at the plants of William H. Grundy Co., Inc., and the Thomas L. Leedom Company, blew before 5 o'clock.

ATTEMPT TO ORGANIZE DRIVE FOR SCRAP METAL

May Designate School Grounds Here As Temporary Depositories

STRESS SERIOUSNESS

Efforts are being made to organize in Bristol an intensive drive for scrap metal. In compliance with the nationwide appeal that every effort be made to reclaim scrap metal throughout the country, and emphasizing the vital necessity for the reclaiming of this metal, Arthur Seyfert, chairman of the Salvage Committee for Bristol borough, was contacted today.

Mr. Seyfert said that he was making an effort to have the Bristol borough school board grant the privilege of using the yards of Bristol borough school buildings for temporary storage for this metal.

The plan is to appeal to the school children of Bristol to take all scrap metal to the school yards where it will be heaped in piles, and then disposed of for use by the government in making the various implements of war. Definite days will be designated, it is stated, on which scrap metal can be taken to the school yards.

Questioned as to what would be done with pieces that are too heavy for the children to handle, Mr. Seyfert said such could be sold to the junk men.

In several communities Boy Scouts have been enlisted in the drive for scrap metal.

No Arrests Made Yet In Fatal Accident Case

According to Pennsylvania Motor Police of South Langhorne barracks, the driver of the truck-tractor and semi-trailer which struck and killed a Falls Township man early yesterday morning, has not been apprehended as yet.

The victim of the fatal accident was Stanley Swidrak, 52, of Penn Valley Road.

Private Forestin, who is investigating, said today that neither the company owning the truck, nor the driver, have been determined to date.

Some information on the type of truck striking the man was given to police by three Bristol men who arrived at the scene just after Swidrak was struck. They are Eugene Armstrong, Edward DiRenzo and a Mr. Cicanti. The driver of the huge truck is said to have told the Bristolians when he saw that the person he had struck was dead, that he would notify police. He is then said to have run to his vehicle, and nothing has been heard from him since by the authorities.

Swidrak was employed by his brother-in-law, John Gancarz, Penn Valley Road, as foreman of a laboring gang which was picking tomatoes. It was at first thought that Swidrak was en route home from a few days' visit in Philadelphia when struck. However, yesterday Mr. Gancarz learned that he had been in Morrisville Tuesday evening, and Swidrak was evidently walking home after leaving a bus which had transported him from Morrisville.

The funeral will be held on Saturday morning from the Gancarz home, with Mass in St. Michael's R. C. Church, Torresdale, at 9.30 o'clock. Burial will be in St. Dominick's Cemetery, Holmesburg.

BRISTOL TWP. YOUTH SENTENCED TO SIX MONTHS IN CO. JAIL

James Hughes, 18, Pleads Guilty to Burglary, Larceny, Receiving Stolen Goods

SEVERAL CASES HEARD

Session of Miscellaneous Quarter Sessions Court Is Held

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 10.—A Bristol Township youth, James Hughes, 18, pleaded guilty to burglary, larceny and receiving stolen goods before Judge Calvin S. Boyer. Judge Boyer sentenced Hughes to serve not less than six months nor more than four years in the Bucks County prison.

A number of plead guilty cases were heard at a session of miscellaneous Quarter Sessions Court.

Hughes was also directed to pay the costs of prosecution and restore the value of the goods stolen.

Sergeant F. X. Kelly, of the South Langhorne sub-station of the P. M. P., testified the youth confessed to robbing the home of Wallace Welsh in Bristol township between July 20 and 27. The stolen goods was valued at $70. Wallace Welsh, of Jenkintown, the owner of the Bristol township property, which is near the defendant's home, valued the rings and watch at $10 apiece.

The defendant, the oldest of seven children, said he was born in Langhorne. He said he drove a truck, earning from $9 to $10 a week.

"I had trouble with my people and since June 1 was living in Philadelphia. I went in for a night's sleep," said the defendant.

Hughes admitted being accompanied by two juveniles.

"We took the stuff to Philadelphia and sold it to a barber and kept the rest."

Prison Warden Earl D. Handy, who testified about the young man's conduct in jail, said six shirts and six pairs of trousers were ruined by the young defendant. "He admitted wrestling and destroying the old clothing to get new clothing," said Warden Handy.

The young defendant, who attended Bristol High School, denied this to Judge Boyer.

"The Court would have considered your case in an entirely different light if your conduct in jail hadn't been so extraordinary," Judge Boyer said.

James Edwards, Trenton Negro, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk in Morrisville. He told Judge Keller that he helped drink two quarts of ale, and that he was driving without a license. The defendant told the Court that he was in trouble about a year ago when he had an automobile accident.

The Court fined Edwards $100 and costs and sentenced him to 30 days in prison from date of his commitment 30 days ago.

Norman Kling, of Danboro, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk. Judge Keller sentenced him to three months to one year in the County Prison. Kling was arrested in Doylestown.

"You are one of our 'problem boys,'" the Court remarked to Kling, who recently was called for draft examination, but turned down because of a physical defect.

"It's too bad you couldn't get into the Army, it might have straightened you out," the Court commented.

One Man's Opinion By Walter Kierman (I. N. S. Staff Writer)

Barney Baruch will be up with that rubber report pretty soon. Then we will know whether it's the rubber of the conversation that's synthetic.

We can make all the rubber we need. We can make so much rubber that we never again would have to depend on an outside source of supply? But is that what we want?

Henry Wallace doesn't think so and he's not alone. He thinks we should make just enough for our war needs.

Even that isn't an original thought. The same thing came up in the last war. We had to have synthetic rubber and we had to have it right away. But we mustn't make so much of it that it would upset, after the war, the markets we always bought from.

Dig into the old newspaper files—you'll find 1942 repeating 1917. The same frantic search for rubber synthetics. The same frantic plans for making "just enough."

If any was made we've forgotten about it. If any is being made now in quantity we haven't heard about it.

Thought for the day: Today can wait. We're planning for tomorrow.

MEAT RATIONING IN U. S.

Meat will be rationed in the United States as soon as the necessary machinery can be set up. This is expected to require four months. In the meantime, Americans are to be asked to reduce their consumption of meat voluntarily. A meatless day may be decreed, observance of which would also be voluntary.

There is no actual shortage of meat in the United States. In fact, the available supply is the largest in history. But lease-lend requirements are expected, will take about one-fourth of all meat processed in the United States this winter, thus reducing the quantity available for domestic consumption.

Meat rationing, as now projected, should not bring a lean and hungry look to the American profile. The figure of two and one-half pounds per week per person is mentioned. The reaction of many persons to this is why rationing is necessary if two and one-half pounds of meat per person per week is available.

But rationing of meat—after the elections—seems to have been decided upon and all that remains to be done is to work out the details, including the size of the ration. Whether rationing of meat will be followed by rationing of other foodstuffs has not been revealed, but that seems to be the plan. What staples are to follow meat, and in what order will be divulged during coming weeks.

There was no compulsory food rationing in the United States during the last war, when food distribution was under the direction of Doctor Hoover. In fact, it was the publicity he obtained as food administrator that led to Mr. Hoover's appointment to the Harding cabinet and his subsequent election as President.

There were meatless days, heatless days, gasless Sundays and a scarcity of sugar during the last war, but everything was on a voluntary, instead of compulsory, plan. Price of foodstuffs were higher in 1917 and 1918 than they have gone so far in this war. Farmers made more money during the last war and wage earners who were largely unorganized less, although the cost of living was higher.

Compared to conditions in the Axis countries, and in other countries of the United Nations, shortages in the United States have brought mild reductions in the use of any pre-war essential. Hardest hit has been the tire supply, due to the cutting off of rubber imports from Malaya. But defense workers and union officials can still buy new tires and even new automobiles. Likewise preachers.

What conditions will resemble at the end of a long war cannot yet be guessed at, but there will be more to eat in the United States for at least a year than in any other country on the face of the earth, and the prospect is that this will remain true until the end of the war however long it lasts.

There is a feeling among Americans that the bad news—rationing, tax and draft—will soon be known and that a stable foundation will then be available as a springboard from which to attack the enemy with vim and vigor. If too much legislative and executive time seems to be taken up at the moment with plans for regimenting the home front, this is but a preliminary to the all-out effort that lies ahead, an effort that is certain to bring victory and a return to the American way of life.

SYNOPSIS

Following her mother's death, Chloe Cameron, just 22 and fired with ambition to become a writer and entertainer, leaves her hometown of Wahilla, Oklahoma, and the opportunity to marry Nate Barlow, the town banker. She hopes to find a publisher for her book, "Songs of the Trail" and also sing her own cowboy and Indian songs. But her book is rejected and, after a vain tour of the theatrical agencies, Chloe takes a secretarial position with the Samuels' Bureau of Entertainment. There she meets, among others, prominent lawyer, when he comes in search of entertainers for a society party. Rann leaves without taking any of Samuels' numbers, but says he may be able to use the "Jack Rabbit Girl" (Chloe's own specialty, which she had offered as last resort) later. Chloe did not mention that she was the "Jack Rabbit Girl." Returning home that night, Chloe meets Hugh Richards, the young man who has the apartment next to hers in Greenwich Village. He is rain-soaked and haggard. He asks permission to go through her apartment to his for his belongings, as Brock, the superintendent, locked him out. About to leave, he collapses from hunger in Chloe's apartment. When he comes to, she insists that he change his wet clothes and stay for dinner. The superintendent finds him there when he goes in search of a leak. Despite Hugh's weakened condition, Brock orders him out. Chloe upbraids Brock for his unkindness and rents Hugh's apartment for him. When they are alone, he asks, "Why are you doing this?" "Could I let you go out in the storm with nowhere to go?" she replies. Their conversation is interrupted by the appearance of Gay Hinkle, a neighbor, to borrow a pair of stockings.

CHAPTER NINE

Richards had separated himself from the pillows and risen. Chloe introduced Gay to him.

"Miss Hinkle lives in 12," she explained.

"I've seen you often," Gay informed Richards, watching him blend with the couch again. "I don't know what I'd do without Chloe. Once when I needed some bi-carb she threw it to me, straight across those thirty-or-so feet, from her window into mine—in a little pewter salt-shaker."

"Oklahoma marksmanship," observed Richards.

"But she won't do it now," Gay added. "When I want anything I can't just holler to her. I have to come and get it."

"I haven't any more pewter salt-shakers," said Chloe.

"I'm going to bring that one back," Gay assured her. "And these, too," as Chloe handed her the stockings.

"A child of Nature," murmured Richards as the bathroom door closed on Gay. When she reappeared, he asked if she had a cigarette, and she offered her case, her long claret-colored nails gleaming as she held it, her black eyes brooding on him thoughtfully. With a little flash of "thank you" to Chloe she was gone, an odor of Black Narcissus lingering in the room like something she had forgotten.

"My vision," said Richards, "is eccentric tonight, but I suppose I really saw it, since I have my cigarette. Is she from Oklahoma, too?"

"No," said Chloe. "Gay's from Idaho, I think. But she's been away a long time."

"Does she always come to borrow something?"

"Not always. Sometimes she brings me a magazine, or the favors she got at some night-club. She's in New York studying—I don't know what, right now."

"Life," suggested Richards. "Yes, and art—though the art varies. It was interior decorating for a while, then it was dress-designing. I know she went in for wood-carving till she cut her finger and switched to taxidermy. She has a quarterly income from home, and when it runs low she gets a job. Once she was hat-check girl at the Heil-and-Toe dance hall, then she was usherette in some theater. Her jobs don't last long, only until her allowance catches up with her."

She saw that he was no longer listening, and she began taking the candles out of the cake.

He smoked in silence, watching the fire.

Presently he said, "I'm not much of a birthday gift. Wouldn't you rather have had something else for your seven dollars? Have you any idea what you've bought yourself?"

"I haven't bought you," Chloe answered.

He rose and went with her. She steadied him to the bed's edge, and he sat there. Would he really undress, she wondered, leaving him, or would he merely sit on in the cold?

Presently, behind the closed door, she heard him moving about, heard the cot creak. He was in bed when she went in again, lying motionless with open, unseeing eyes, the light still on.

Chloe stood still for a moment. Then she turned out the light and went to the telephone.

"Influenza," said the doctor. "And probably pneumonia."

He was a brisk, keen-eyed, elderly man. Chloe had never seen him before, but she had heard Miss Jepson telephoning him one day when a friend of hers was ill. "He'll tell me the truth," she had said.

The truth, as the doctor told it to answered. "A week's rent isn't buying you. You'll pull yourself together before it's over."

"Influenza," said the doctor. "And probably pneumonia."

Again she knew that he was not listening, and she left the cake and went into his room. She put on the light and turned down the bed.

Chloe filled a hot-water bag and placed it in the bed. The pillow was thin and she brought one of her own to supplement it. She opened the hand trunk and, shaking out another rumpled suit, hung it behind the curtain. She folded what linen she found into a drawer of the chiffonier and laid a suit of pajamas on the bed.

He sat where she had left him, the cigarette dying in his hand.

"Your room's ready," she told him.

He gave no sign that he heard her. Presently he asked, "Have you any money?" . . . Not that I'll need it, I'm thinking of you."

The dark eyes in his pale face seemed to burn as they met hers.

"I've enough," she answered. "Come to bed now."

"It won't take a lot," he said, not moving. "You'll find what I mean in my bag. A large manila envelope. I was going to destroy it, but since . . ."

He paused. "If you haven't any money now," he said, "you may have later. So keep it." He seemed urgent. "All right," said Chloe. "One thing more. Don't send me to a hospital. Promise!"

"All right," repeated Chloe.

night, was that Richards had stayed out of bed too long. There were evidences, too, of malnutrition, not to say starvation.

"No resistance," said the doctor. "Nothing to fight with."

His keen eyes scrutinized Chloe in a questioning way.

"He's my neighbor," explained Chloe. "I never talked with him until tonight. I asked him to have dinner with me."

"I suppose you don't know his family." And when Chloe shook her head, "He should be in the hospital before pneumonia sets in."

Chloe looked at the white unconscious face.

"He doesn't want to go to the hospital. He made me promise."

"Who will take care of him?" asked the doctor when they had gone into the hall. "Can he afford a nurse?"

"He can afford me," said Chloe. "At night, that is. I work during the day."

"You can't keep that up. But . . ."

His pause indicated that she would not have to keep it up long. "I will send a Community Nurse," he said. "She will come for a while every day. Her charges will be nominal, and perhaps one of you has a friend who will sit with him at other times and carry out her instructions."

Buffet Service Solves A
Hurried Problem When Busy
Family Has To Eat and Run

Air raid wardens' meeting, first aid class, sewing session at Red Cross—some sort of defense activity is scheduled for the evening, and there's a rush after dinner to get away—so it's eat and run, nowadays, for lots of once leisurely men and women.

It's more than ever important to provide well-balanced and thoroughly satisfying meals for the family. This poses something of a problem for the chief cook, who often has defense work of her own to look after; but you'll find an easy solution is to plan a buffet supper on busy nights. Hot soup, cold meat or a pot of baked beans, salad, plenty of rolls and a toothsome dessert are an easy-to-serve choice. To relieve strain and tension for everybody, it's a good idea to brew lots of hot decaffeinated coffee, so that everybody can indulge in heartening second cups without worry over sleeping problems. When you use the pot or percolator methods, it's important to brew decaffeinated coffee just a little longer than the ordinary kind to bring out its full, fine flavor. And be sure, always, to have all coffee-making equipment scrupulously clean.

Buffet Cofolate

- 1 cup strong decaffeinated coffee
- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- Dash of salt
- 3 cups milk

Make decaffeinated coffee extra strength using $1\frac{1}{2}$ tablespoons for each cup ($\frac{1}{2}$ pint) water. Add chocolate to coffee in top of double boiler and place over low flame, stirring until chocolate is melted and blended. Add sugar and salt, and boil 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Place over boiling water. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly; then heat. When hot, beat with rotary egg beater until frothy. Serve hot. Top with whipped cream, if desired. Serves 4.

Baked Peach Tapioca Pudding

- $\frac{1}{3}$ cup quick-cooking tapioca
- 4 tablespoons sugar
- $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon nutmeg
- 2 cups canned sliced peaches, drained
- $2\frac{1}{2}$ cups water and peach juice
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons melted butter

Combine quick-cooking tapioca with remaining ingredients in greased baking dish. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 30 minutes, or until done, stirring well every 10 minutes, and again when removing from oven. Serve warm or cold with cream. Serves 8.

Pineapple Pointers

Canned unsweetened pineapple juice from Hawaii adds vitamins B-1 and C as well as a delicious flavor to September desserts. Try Pineapple-Peach Soda. The children will like it with crisp cookies.

Pineapple-Peach Soda

- 1 ripe yellow peach
- 11 teaspoon sugar
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup canned unsweetened Hawaiian pineapple juice
- 1 scoop vanilla ice cream
- Sparkling water

Pare and stone peach. Mix with a fork and blend with sugar. Place mixture in the bottom of a tall iced tea glass. Add one-half cup unsweetened Hawaiian pineapple juice which has been well-chilled in the can before opening. Add ice cream. Fill glass with well-chilled sparkling water. Give a brisk stir and serve at once with a long spoon.

Instead of after-dinner coffee for adults, serve Frappé Pineapple Juice with crackers and cheese.

Frappé Pineapple Juice

- 1 quart canned unsweetened Hawaiian pineapple juice
- Finely crushed ice
- Mint

Fill frappe glasses three-quarters full of crushed ice and pour over pineapple juice, which has been well-chilled in the can before opening, to fill glass. Garnish with a sprig of mint. Serve at once. Yield: Six servings.

SWEET AND SOUR CARROTS

- 18 whole carrots
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 3 to 5 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 cup hot water

Pare whole carrots and cook in rapidly boiling salted water until tender. Make a sauce by melting the butter and adding the flour and seasonings; blend well. Add sugar; stir till dissolved. To serve, pour sauce over the whole hot carrots and serve at once. Serves six.

metal, and the troops have netted a neat sum of money for troop use.

Since there is a very serious shortage of tin and scrap metal the War Production Board has asked for an intensive drive for these two items.

All must save and salvage all tin cans and there should be no cans sent out to any dumps. It is stated.

The need is for the systematic and efficient effort of every citizen in saving cans to be processed, to reclaim approximately ninety thousand tons of tin. This situation is serious and demands every one's entire efforts.

Lemonade--Healthful And Refreshing

Lemonade is not the only drink that "touches the spot" on a sultry day. It's a healthful beverage as well. Lemons have long been known for their health protecting vitamins B and C and more recently this fruit has been found to supply the only known source of vitamin P, or citrin--the vitamin that assists in wound healing and hemorrhage prevention.

Fortunately, good lemonade takes no more sugar than tea or coffee. Some find it more refreshing without the sugar. And for those whose sweet tooth must be catered to, may I suggest honey as a sweetener?

Instantaneous Lemonade

Combine equal parts of honey and fresh lemon juice and store in the refrigerator in a covered container (less honey if this proves preferable). When ready to serve, dilute lemon mixture with ice water to suit individual taste, garnish with a maraschino cherry float and a lemon slice on the rim of each glass--and serve at once.

This ready-made Lemonade foundation saves time when the urge for the tempting beverage arises and it can be made in quantities so it's ready for family or party use at a moment's notice. It's a delightful way to satisfy the children, for tiny tots can add ice water easily to the foundation and mother need have no kitchen muss when little hands are at work preparing this favorite beverage.

Lemon Shake

For each glass, use the juice and grated peel of one-half lemon. Add two tablespoons sugar syrup, one-half cup water, one-fourth cup crushed ice, and one egg white, well beaten. Mix thoroughly in a shaker. Pour into glass.

This is an all-around beverage, good for breakfast, luncheon, dinner, mid-morning or afternoon.

Or use good old-fashioned lemonade, with no frills of any kind. It too, is healthful and refreshing.

Early Fall Dessert Favorites

Cooler Weather Proves Delightful For Making Delicious Autumn Desserts

The weather is becoming more pleasant each day. Sultry days are few and far between. This is truly the kind of weather when housewives do not mind a little extra effort when planning their main courses and desserts. They know such effort is richly rewarded when the children shout and even the adults nod their satisfaction. Here are two delicious desserts that will certainly gain such approval. By carefully following the directions, these dishes can be made in a few minutes--and you will probably use them for "repeat" desserts many times before the year is over.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Hailed by the critics as one of the great novels of our generation, and America's Number One Best-Seller for many months, Eric Knight's "This Above All" has at last been brought to the screen and arrives at the Grand Theatre today.

Co-starring Tyrone Power and Joan Fontaine, the film was produced by Darryl F. Zanuck, Academy Award producer, under the directorial ægis of Anatole Litvak. The screenplay was fashioned by R. C. Sherriff, famed author of "Journey's End."

Telling the story of two young lovers caught in the turmoil of war in Britain, "This Above All" has aptly been termed "the first great love story of our generation." It takes the two principal characters through a great emotional crisis, which every man and woman is facing today.

BRISTOL THEATRE

"There's never a law of man or God holds North of 53."

That, to perfunctory a line from Kipling, is "The Spoilers," which had its local premier yesterday at the Bristol Theatre.

Vivid, breathless screen matter is made by Producer Frank Lloyd from the Rex Beach best-seller novel which dramatizes the mad rush to the Klondike and the primitive lust for gold—and a woman's kiss—in the rip-roaring era of '98.

RITZ THEATRE

Division as modern as today's headlines, while much funnier, is offered in "Pacific Rendezvous," a new picture which opened last night at the Ritz Theatre.

from 1928 to 1933, Kathleen Howard was the arbiter and exponent of what the well-dressed woman should wear. As the stuffy Mrs. Snodgrass, in the Hal Roach comedy "Miss Polly," at the Ritz Theatre, Kathleen Howard wears a wardrobe that the well-dressed woman would throw away with the greatest of speed.

"BILL" PETRICK CAPTURES HONORS IN BRISTOL SUBURBAN LEAGUE; LEAVES SOON TO JOIN ARMY

William "Bill" Petrick, who will leave with the next contingent of selectees for service in the U. S. Army, captured the 1942 championship of the Bristol Suburban League. The St. Ann's outfielder hit the ball at a .357 clip, beating out Art Krames, of the Voltz-Texaco team, by four points.

"Bill" Balon, Diamond, and Felker, Edgely, followed in the order named with Balon being seven points behind the leader, Edgely, which won the 1942 title, had four batters in the first ten of the selected group.

Tony Palumbo, Hunters, made the most hits with 26, while Danny Mazzillo, Voltz-Texaco, finished second with 24. Dan Pagnotta, Hunters, had seven doubles to his credit, one more than Mazzillo, Voltz-Texaco, but Mazzillo came on top with the most triples, five, while Carter, of Hunters, had three.

Home runs in the circuit were scarce, with Palumbo, Krames, and Gielow, of St. Ann's, having one each.

Only twelve of the regular players in the pool finished with better than .300 averages.

PLAY SECOND GAME IN YOUTH LEAGUE

The second game of the round-robin tournament to determine the winner of the Diamond Youth League will be played tonight on St. Ann's field when the Voltz-Texaco Juniors meet the Franklin A. C. Game is scheduled to begin at 5:45 o'clock.

It is most likely that Art Gohsen will again pitch for Voltz while Dominick Oriola or Dominick Sagolla does the hurling for the Franklin team.

Gohsen held the Third Ward team to a lone bludge in the game Tuesday night, only a single by Elmer robbing him of a no-run, no-hit game.

Manager Bob Coles, of Voltz, has another twirler in Collins. But to use him on the mound would weaken his shortstop position considerably.

Air Raid Alarm is Again Jumbled fore the red signal was received, according to the official report.

With the blowing of the two whistles, air raid wardens, emergency police and other civilian defense corps sprang into action. Traffic was halted and civilians were ordered off the streets.

The red signal was received at 5:17 and the all-clear at 5:39. The premature alarm was sounded ten minutes previously.

After traffic had been stopped on the premature signal it was permitted to move again until the official alarm was received.

The premature alarm was sounded just as the streets were well filled with pedestrians en route home from their places of employment.

The premature alarm was sounded at just about the time that a number of trains leave Bristol, and a number of persons missed these trains. Some of the taxicab drivers not hearing the official siren at the Municipal Building told emergency police who stopped them that it was not the official alarm and they were permitted to continue.

Chief of Police Linford J. Jones, who is the chief air raid warden for Bristol, was en route from Doylestown to Bristol when the alarm was sounded. The emergency police in Bristol township placed an officer on the side of Chief Jones' car and escorted him through the district.

The test caught unawares a five-county area at the height of congestion, and presented a host of new problems to the army of air raid wardens who sprang to their posts.

In Bensalem Township it is stated by officials that there were not many wardens nor emergency police on duty, due, it is believed, to the hour of the test. In some instances some police and wardens have substitutes to take over when they are not available, and in some cases the wives patrol when their husbands are at work.

All was well under control, however, it is reported by L. Creighton Vandegrift, there being but one infraction, which case is being followed up.

A telephone call was made by the driver of the mail truck who wished to meet the mail train at Andalusia, and he was given permission to proceed on his route in order to get sacks of mail to the station in time.

In Holmerville a goodly percentage of wardens, police, first-aid workers and messengers responded to the alarm.

Bristol Twp. Youth Sentenced To Six Months in County Jail lodged by Bucks County authorities, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to a charge of taking part in several robberies in Lower Makefield township more than a year ago.

Paul Heyduke, who accompanied Crawford, was sentenced last year in the Bucks County Court for the same offenses.

Most of the loot stolen from homes was recovered by the owners, Private Jones, of the Lanchorne sub-station of Motor Police testified.

In New Jersey, Crawford and Heyduke were implicated in a stick-up and an automobile theft.

Crawford has served 13 months in Annandale, where he lived in the home of a woman and had 70 days taken off his sentence for good behavior.

Judge Keller told Crawford he was going to give him the benefit of his good record at Annandale, and then sentenced him to serve four to eight years in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

Heyduke was sentenced last year to six to ten years in the penitentiary.

Frank Richard Thunquist, of Ivyland, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk on East State St., Doylestown, at 2 o'clock on the morning of May 26.

Officer Clifford Beck arrested Thunquist as he was driving the wrong way on a one-way street.

Thunquist is employed at a Johnsville airplane plant.

The defendant testified that he had been on a party in Doylestown and had been drinking some "rum and coke."

Thunquist was fined $100 and costs.

Frank Edwards, 42, Jamison,

FOR STRETCH DRIVE By Jack Sord

charged with drunken driving and operating a car after his operating privileges had been revoked, pleaded guilty before Judge Boyer.

Constable Walter Corson arrested the defendant on August 23.

Mrs. Helen Irene Rubicam, whose husband employed the defendant for seven years, called the police to their home because the defendant had been drinking and fighting.

The defendant admitted having served 30 days in Montgomery county prison on a charge of drunken driving in 1941. He also served one year in a Philadelphia county prison in 1933 on an assault and battery charge.

Judge Boyer sentenced the defend-
